FRIDAY EVENING, JUNE 21, 1878.

THE SINS OF THE FATHER VISITED UPON HIS CHILD.-Living in a miserable shanty in Washington...le........... 6 35 a.m. 9 35 p.m. the rear of the better sort of buildings of the kind in that locality, conspicuous for its squalor and wretchedness on Sixty ninth street, near Eighth avenue, N. Y., may be found a lone old woman who has a romantic and sadly interesting history. She is Elizabeth Techech, the only daughter of Heiorich Ludwig Tschech, who, it will be remembered, was executed at Spandan, near Berlin, December 14, 1844, for the attempted assassination of King Frederick William IV., brother of the present Emperor of Germany, the recent attempt to assassinate whom is fresh in the minds of our readers.— Her father had been a wealthy Burgomaster in Spandan, but in a moment of madness he committed a deed which consigned him to the scaffold, his fortune to confiscation, and his daughter to banishment. Miss Tschech reached New York and married a man named Wellenan, by whom she had two children, both of whom, it is believed, with her husband are dead.

For the last ten years she has lived alone, and has supported herself as well as she could by hard labor. Her health has been for some time broken down, and she is unable to do any severe work, although she attempts what she can get. Some time ago, before the last at and via Atlantia, to New Orleans. can get. Some time ago, before the last at tempt to assassinate Emperor William, she wrote to Prince Bismarck, asking if the rigors of her exile could not be alleviated, and that she be mercifully allowed a small pittance from the former fortune of her father, for whose in sane act she was in no way responsible. No direct answer has been received, and she now despairs of any elemency from that quarter.
